

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Scott and their children, who have been traveling in Europe since July, will return to this country the first week in October. They are now in England, where they have been for several weeks. On landing in New York Mr. and Mrs. Scott will come at once to Richmond, where they will open their town house on West Franklin Street for the winter.

In the Mountains.
Mrs. M. I. Campbell is spending the month of September in Salem and Bedford County. Mrs. Campbell was at the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for two months this summer.

Miss Grace Campbell left town last Thursday for Blackstone Female Institute.

Of Interest Here.
The wedding of Miss Margaret Key Ramsey, of 131 West Mount Royal avenue, Baltimore, and Lieutenant John Taylor Gause Stapler, U. S. N., will take place on the evening of Saturday, September 21, at 6:30 o'clock, in Christ Church Chapel, Miss Ramsey is the daughter of Major and Mrs. Henry Ashton Ramsey. Her father, who was chief engineer on the Virginia when she fought her memorable battle with the Monitor in Hampton Roads in 1862, was also in those days commandant of the famous Confederate States Navy Yard at Charlotte, N. C., where the bells of Charlotte were melted and made into cannon at the time of the Battle of Vicksburg. Miss Ramsey's brother was the late Lieutenant Charles Rufus Ramsey, a niece of the Virginia when she fought her memorable battle with the Monitor in Hampton Roads in 1862, was also in those days commandant of the famous Confederate States Navy Yard at Charlotte, N. C., where the bells of Charlotte were melted and made into cannon at the time of the Battle of Vicksburg.

Engagement.
An engagement of much interest to Richmond society recently announced is that of Miss Cora Winston Younger and James Kerr Dunlop. Miss Younger is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Carter Younger, of 2008 Monument Avenue, and the wedding will be celebrated very quietly on October 1 at the home of the bride's parents. Only the immediate families will be present at the ceremony.

Prominent Eastern.
Says the Baltimore Sun:
"Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wiley Galbreath, of the Preston, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Bowles Galbreath, to Archibald Walthall Archer, son of the late Colonel Archibald W. Archer and Mrs. Nellie De Wolf Archer, of Bristol, R. I."

"Although she has lived in Baltimore but six years, Miss Galbreath has made many warm friends here and has been interested particularly in charitable enterprises. She was born in Cumberland, Md., where she lived until coming to Baltimore. Her education was received at Miss Anable's school, South Broad Street, Philadelphia."

"Mrs. Galbreath was formerly Miss Mary Bowles, of Bedford Springs, Pa. She too, has been much admired in Baltimore's social circles. Both she and her husband are related to prominent families in Pennsylvania and Maryland."

"A prominent business man of New York, Mr. Archer is also a member of several exclusive clubs, including the St. Nicholas and the New York Yacht Club. His aunt, Mrs. Frances Payson, of Newport and Bristol, R. I., recently entertained Miss Galbreath at her cottage by the sea."

"It is expected that the marriage will take place at the First Presbyterian Church next January."

The announcement is of much interest in Richmond, where Mr. Archer is prominently related. He belongs to one of the most distinguished and well-known families in the State, and his wedding to Miss Galbreath, who is a very beautiful girl, will be a society event of much importance in Baltimore.

Home Wedding.
A quiet home wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. M. Loyal, at Millboro, on Wednesday, September 11, when Miss Grace Hansford Loyal became the bride of James Spurgeon Doyle. Only a few relatives and friends of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. J. A. Thomas.

Little Miss Margaret Eleanor Holden, a niece of the bride, carried the ring. The bride wore a gown of soft white satin with a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle left immediately after the ceremony for Washington, Atlantic City, Niagara Falls and Philadelphia. The bride traveled in a modern suit of blue cloth. Guests from a distance attending the wedding were: Mr. C. E. Williams and son, Mrs. J. C. Holden and daughter, of Richmond; W. P. Chaplin, of Mineral; Miss Marie Loyal, of Hinton, W. Va.; K. C. Byrd, of Covington.

Family Reunion.
A reunion of the Griffith family was held in Louise recently, every one of the immediate family being present. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Griffith, Louise; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Boxwell, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Boxwell, Mrs. F. D. Beveridge and Mr. and Mrs. Howard, of Richmond; S. H. Boxwell and Miss Anna Griffith, Louise; Misses Lucy and Anna Beveridge and Louise Boxley, of Richmond.

Important Meeting.
The Dorothea Payne Madison Chapter, Daughter of 1812, will hold their first fall meeting on Wednesday afternoon, September 18, at four o'clock. The meeting will be held at 934 West Grace Street and all members are urged to attend.

Crosses of Honor.
An interesting event of this evening will be the delivery of sixty-four crosses of honor by Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, at 3 East Grace Street. A charming musical program has been arranged to entertain the guests, and several short speeches will be made by prominent Confederate veterans. Each guest is asked to bring some piece of china for the Confederate Home for Seedy Women. Members of both Pickett and Lee Camps, and all members of Lee, Richmond and Chesterfield Chapters, U. D. C., are invited to be present, as are all members of any Confederate organization.

In and Out of Town.
Mrs. Edmond Strudwick and her daughter, Miss Jane Strudwick, have returned to the city, after spending the summer with relatives in Hillsboro, N. C.

BUCKINGHAM TEACHERS IN SESSION AT DILLWYN

Two interesting meetings on Friday. Remarkable drought continues.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Arvon, Va., September 15.—A most successful and highly interesting meeting of the Buckingham County Teachers' Association was held at Dillwyn on Friday of last week, teachers from every district of the county being present. An interesting programme was carried out, there being two sessions, morning and afternoon.

Professor Harry T. Turner, principal of St. Andrews High School, was elected president of the county league in the place of Professor Oregon F. Morgan, resigned. Mrs. Julia Kyle, of the primary department of the Dillwyn High School, was re-elected secretary and treasurer. Professor Turner and Miss Leila Gillespie, the latter principal of the Enonville graded school, was appointed to represent the association at the next annual education conference which meets in Richmond.

Addresses were made by Professor J. Walter Kenney, formerly principal of the Dillwyn high school, Professor Turner, and Superintendent Plummer F. Jones. Mrs. Julia Kyle read a paper on the marks of a good teacher, and Miss Louise McCraw, of Andersonville, also read a paper which elicited much favorable comment.

It is expected that every school room of the county will employ individual drinking cups this season, that other sanitary arrangements will obtain, and that sanitation will be regularly taught in every school of the county.

Buckingham led the State last year in its observance of Patrons' Day, and steps were taken to insure a still better observance of the day this year. Every teacher will be required to observe the day according to regulation.

and each will make a detailed report to the division superintendent. Six prizes will be offered by the division superintendent and the county board for the best observance of the day of the part of the teachers.

Professor Hall has arrived from Gordonsville to take charge of the Dillwyn high school, which will open Monday morning. The other high and graded schools of the county will open the same day. The common one-room schools will open on October 7.

There is still a remarkable scarcity of colored teachers in the county, there not being even applicants for more than half the schools. The salaries are fairly good, but the teachers, under the new stringent regulations, find it difficult to pass the necessary examinations for certificates. Seventy out of a possible ninety teachers have registered their certificates up to this time with the superintendent.

The remarkable drought which has been working havoc here for the past six or eight weeks continued unabated. The threatened old weather of Friday failed to materialize. The corn will not be more than half the usual size, while tobacco will probably be cut to the same extent. The tobacco market has already opened in Dillwyn, buyer James Venable, of Farmville, being on hand, and Buyer and Warehouse Manager McGee being due to arrive in a solid daily and are bringing good prices.

Dillwyn's town continues to grow rapidly, and there has been a number of very handsome residences in the course of construction. Several new stores have just opened and others are building. A new and up-to-date newspaper plant has just been put in operation in a building erected for the purpose.

Much interest is now being taken in the majority of the town of Dillwyn since the resignation of J. Walter Kenney, who leaves for the winter. The circuit judge was asked by the town to appoint a man, but he decided, it is said, not to do so, and this throws the appointment of a successor of Mr. Kenney up to the town Council. It is causing much comment in Dillwyn and the local papers.

The new cattle disease is still prevalent here, though not much fatality is observed, the cattle recovering under antiseptic treatment and removal from the infected pastures.

Renewed activity in real estate has marked the early part of this month, a number of homebuyers from West Virginia purchasing in and around Dillwyn. Options are freely sought here on slate, copper and other mineral lands. Recently two prominent speculators have been seeking options on a well known tract of copper and pyrites tract located near here.

The large tract of land, twelve hundred acres in extent, between Arvon and d'Gold Hill, which has been cut up into ten and twenty-acre tracts, is being sold off rapidly, the purchasers in almost every case being homebuyers, who will build and either truckers or engage work in the slate quarries here.

AUDACIOUS IS LAUNCHED.

New English Battleship Slides into the Water.

Birkenhead, Eng., September 15.—The new English battleship Audacious, one of the King George V. class, was launched here yesterday. The warship already has been eighteen months in building, the delay in her construction being caused by labor troubles which have seriously affected all British naval construction.

Many improvements have been introduced in the Audacious, the details of which, however, have been withheld by the admiralty.

Public Schools Open To-Day. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Lynchburg, Va., September 15.—The opening of the public schools here Monday will see the largest attendance in the history of the city. The high school will gain about fifty new students from persons who have moved here since spring and who will enroll in the new high school. Many of the grammar and primary schools, although four buildings have been erected in the past three years, promise to be overcrowded.

COON DECLINES TO ENTER RACE

Will Not Seek Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Raleigh, N. C., September 15.—The prediction right after the Charlotte and Greensboro Republican conventions that Professor Charles L. Coon, nominated by the Bull Mooseers for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, would not accept the nomination, comes true. Professor Coon being just out in a card in which he will not accept, would not have the office if tendered him by all three or all four of the parties, and that he expects to verify for Wilson and Craig. He says he has a fight to make for remedial legislation in this State for the public school system; that he can best make it in the ranks, and that he proposes to make it impossible for any to charge in this fight he proposes to make that he is seeking any office. He believes that there are a number of changes that should be made in the educational laws of the State, particularly in the matter of the selection of school officers and the selection of books to be in the hands of professional teachers exclusively.

In addition to the bids being asked for by the United States government for the fire-proofing and remodeling of the post-office and Federal court building here and the doubling of its capacity by an addition on the west side, there is now a call for bids for remodeling the quarters for the post-office and all the other government offices now in the building while this work is going on. The building will have to be vacated possibly for a couple of years.

CROWN PRINCE FEARS HE IS LOSING REASON

Goes Abroad to Consult Eminent Brain and Nerve Specialists.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENAY.

TURKEY'S Crown Prince Yussouf Izzeddine has for some time past been laboring under the conviction that he is losing his reason. He makes no secret about the matter, and declares that since several months he has been a prey to fits of melancholia, and of intense mental depression, as well as of lapses of memory. He has now gone abroad to consult eminent brain and nerve specialists at Vienna, in France, and in Switzerland, and before his departure from Constantinople, notified his uncle, the Sultan, as well as the Premier, old Moultar Pasha Gasl, who was the mentor of his youth, and who has remained his most trusted friend, that unless the foreign physicians afford relief, and hold out promise of speedy cure, he will, on his return to Stamboul, resign his position and rank as heir apparent to the throne, making way for his uncle, Prince Bahad-Eddine, only surviving brother of ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, and of the present Sultan, and like them, a son of Sultan Abdul Medjid.

After Vahid-Eddine, comes Prince Salah-Eddine, only son of that ill-fated ex-Sultan Murad, who, after six months reign in 1876, was dethroned on charges of insanity, due to his revolutionary regime, and was kept during the remaining twenty-eight years of his life in the closest and most cruel captivity by his younger brother and successor, Sultan Abdul Hamid, now likewise dethroned, and a prisoner of state.

In Turkey the succession to the throne goes, not to the eldest son of the sovereign, but to the next eldest Prince of the reigning family.

Crown Prince Yussouf-Izzeddine is the eldest son of the late Sultan Abdul Aziz, who met with a violent death a few days after his deposition in 1876, having either stabbed himself, or having been stabbed by others, with a pair of long narrow-bladed and very pointed Turkish scissars. The Prince is a very short man of about fifty-six, who, throughout the thirty odd years of Abdul Hamid's reign, lived in quasi-captivity in his Palace, cut off from all intercourse with the outer world, and an object of profound suspicion and aversion to his cousin, the Sultan. This species of imprisonment impaired his health, and seems, according to recent developments, to have affected his mind. For when a man acquires the conviction that he is losing his reason, he is in a very bad way mentally.

The Prince is persona grata at Berlin, but not in London, where he made himself very disagreeable at the time of King George's coronation, owing to the inability of that monarch to accord him the Order of the Garter. In fact, his abandonment of the position of heir apparent would be a source of satisfaction rather than of regret to the English, whose influence is once more predominant at Constantinople.

The altogether exceptional honors with which Cardinal van Rossum, Legate of the Pope, has been welcomed by Emperor Francis Joseph II. The emperor, and his consort, at Vienna, Congress is now in progress, serves to recall the almost entirely forgotten fact that in 1782 Pope Pius VI. visited the Austrian metropolis in state, and spent Easter week at the Hofburg, as a guest of Emperor Joseph II. The latter had inaugurated all sorts of new policies inimical to the Church, and as letters and verbal messages by trusted emissaries proved fruitless, the Pontiff determined to make the journey from Rome to Vienna himself, in order to see what he could accomplish by means of personal persuasion.

During his stay in the Kaiserstadt, the Pope visited the various public institutions and hospitals, escorted by the Emperor, descended into the vaults of the Capucin Church to pray beside the remains of Joseph II's mother, the great Empress Maria Theresa, washed the feet of twelve old men at the Hofburg, and took on Thursday, on Good Friday, made a tour of the round of the principal Churches; and on Easter morning blessed the vast crowd of people gathered on St. Stephens Square, from a balcony of the ancient Basilica of St. Stephen. It was only towards the end of Easter week that the royal departure for Rome was escorted as far as Marano by the Emperor, and by Archduke Maximilian.

Not since the tragic death last spring of Prince George William, of Great Britain and of Brunswick, who was crushed and instantly killed by the upset of his automobile while en route to attend the funeral of his uncle, King Frederick, of Denmark, at Copenhagen, has there been an Royal motor accident to record, until the extraordinary one at a level crossing, the Prince's automobile dashed forward into a freight train. Fortunately that latter had just come to a standstill, right on the level crossing, which was unlighted and unguarded, with bar unlowered. Had the train been in motion, the occupants of the automobile would assuredly have been killed.

As it was, the Duchess and her daughter escaped without a number of severe cuts, and the two ladies, the Marquise Paulucci and Baroness von Hertling were also badly, though not fatally hurt. A few minutes later the second automobile, containing the Duchess's Chamberlain, Count Louis de Talleyrand-Perigord, (only son of the Duc de Montmorency, and her physician, who appeared upon the scene, and the injured were conveyed back to Vienna, to the palace of the Duchess's sister, the widowed Archduchess Marie Therese, where they are now slowly recovering.

The Duchess is the widow of Robert of Bourbon, last sovereign Duke of Parma. Robert had succeeded to the Crown on his father's assassination by murderers, who were never caught or punished, and who were supposed to have been one of them made a confession of the crime just before his death, in a hospital at Philadelphia. Duke Robert was still a minor when deprived of his throne by the events of 1858, and spent the remainder of his days in gilded exile in Austria, and in France, in which country he owned the superb and historic Chateau of Chambord, which still belongs to his widow. She is a daughter of the late ex-King Miguel of Portugal, and a sister, therefore, of the Dowager Grand Duchess of Luxembourg. Her daughter Zita married last year Archduke Francis Charles, who stands second in the line of succession to the throne of Austria.

The news that Lord Newton's task has entrusted to Lord Newton the task of compiling a biography of the late Lord Lyons, and has turned over to him all the latter's papers, diaries and correspondence, cannot fail to prove of interest to people on this side of the Atlantic. For Lord Lyons was Plenipotentiary of Great Britain at Washington, throughout the troubled period extending from 1855 to 1865, and was on terms of considerable intimacy with President Lincoln.

It will be remembered that when Lord Lyons visited the White House in full uniform, attended by his Secretaries, to ceremoniously announce the marriage of the then Prince of Wales, Lincoln rather disturbed the gravity of the occasion by exclaiming to the Envoy: "Go thou, Lyons, and do likewise!" a command which the Minister, however, refrained from obeying, since he died a confirmed bachelor.

Lord Lyons enjoyed not only the intimacy, but also the complete confidence of many of the leading men at Washington in those days, and was enabled to contribute in no small degree to maintain peace between the United States and England, in spite of the many things that were calculated to disturb amicable relations. Lord Lyons was a great recorder, and had an inexhaustible fund of Lincoln stories, some of which will now appear in print for the first time. (Copyright, 1912, by the Brentwood Company.)

YIELD OF CORN IS SHORT.

Will Not Compare With Last Year's Crop in Southern Section.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Heathsville, Va., September 15.—The corn crop in this section will be very short this season, due in part to continued droughts. It will not compare with the yield last year, and already corn is selling here for $1.19 per bushel. In most sections the corn has "fired," and many farmers will be unable to properly save their fodder, scarcity of farm help being one of the chief reasons.

The yield of tomatoes, on the contrary, has been large and the fruit fine. Early in the season prices were good, but the latter crops are principally for the canneries, and the price is only moderately good.

PAGEANT WILL BE FEATURE OF SHOW

History of the Chase Will Be Shown in Floats and Costumes.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Warrenton, Va., September 15.—Every mail brings a number of entries showing there is much interested manifested in the race meet and horse show of the Warrenton Hunt Club, which will take place August 8 on the course of the farm of William F. Wilbur, on the Bear Wallow Road. In connection with the two costume classes which will be a part of the morning's events, a grand pageant has been arranged. The committee has chosen for its subject "The Hunt or the History of the Chase From the Time of Diana, the Goddess of Hunting to the Present Day." This pageant will consist of floats and riding parties costumed for the different periods and everything is being done to make them historically correct and of great splendor.

There will be fourteen entries in this event, and each period has been assigned to different women who are sparing neither time nor expense to vie with each other for the handsome silver loving cup which is to be awarded to the best float. Such well known Warrentonians as Mrs. William C. Marshall, Mrs. Richard Wallace, Mrs. Miriam Crosby, Miss Elizabeth Gaines, Mrs. William C. Hayes, Miss Annie Camden Spilman and others will be in charge of the various floats, and it is understood no detail to make the entries perfect and correct will be spared or overlooked.

The costume class for the most humorous exhibit will be second only to the pageant. A number of exhibits of the cleverest kind are being prepared for this class.

Another feature of the meet will be a troop of the Fifteenth Cavalry, which is to be sent down by the United States government to give one of its most exciting drills on rough riding which will give the people of this community an opportunity to see at home a spectacular event which has never before been witnessed in this locality. The presence of one of the best bands from Washington will also be a feature. The entries close on October 1 with the secretary, W. S. Sowers.

The mule steeplechase is something new. It will be remembered by all who were present at the former meet that the mule and laughter which were provoked in the mule race; it was ridiculous, but it is an agreed thing that a mule steeplechase will even be more ridiculous if possible. The committee is making a special appeal for entries for this event.

KILLED BY SHARPSHOOTER.

Man Near Michigan Penitentiary Disobeyed Order to Halt.

Jackson, Mich., September 15.—Adjutant General Vandercok, of the Michigan Guard, has been officially informed of the shooting early yesterday of John Elsay, a foreigner. The tragedy occurred near the State penitentiary, still guarded by picked militia sharpshooters, and it was one of the guardsmen who fired the fatal shot. It is claimed the man refused to halt and met his death while fleeing from his pursuers. Within the last forty-eight hours the soldiers have more than once been obliged to halt people suspiciously close to the prison walls and the incidents caused the guards to redouble their vigilance last night.

The body was identified by a local Catholic priest, who declared Elsay had worked about the rectory and church for some time.
